Popis: Environment The procurement is for special vehicles for fire and rescuing services. Regulations on emission requirements for public procurement of vehicles for road transport (FOR-2022-12-20-2384) § 2 exempt such vehicles from the regulations. In addition, the Procurement Act § 5 b opens a third paragraph that the obligation to set climate and environmental requirements does not apply "if the procurement is of its nature has an immaterial climate footprint and an environmental impact". For turn-out vehicles, the environmental impact must be assessed based on the vehicle's particular area of use. The vehicles are always required to deliver full performance in extreme operating conditions, regardless of temperature, load and available infrastructure. There are currently no zero emission alternatives that fulfil all the technical and operative requirements. Emphasising climate and environmental considerations with a minimum of 30% as the award criterion will therefore not have a real effect on climate and the environment, and can, in the worst case, weaken society's preparedness, cf. § 5 b third paragraph, first period. Based on this, the environmental requirements in accordance with the Public Procurement Act § 5 b, are assessed as not applicable for this procurement, cf. § 5b third paragraph.
