

Alina Bilan is a PhD student in political sciences at the National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, Bucharest, Romania and holds an LLM in business law from the Faculty of Law Bucharest and an MS in environmental studies and sustainable development from N.U.P.S.P.A Bucharest, Romania. Since 2005, Alina Bilan has been a public procurement and administrative law specialised lawyer and was elected as the president of an NGO- the Romanian Association for Local Sustainable Development, in 2017. In her activity, she seeks to support the administration of the local communities from Romania to organise sustainable public procurement procedures. She is trying to increase awareness of the importance of GPP for achieving sustainable development.