II.1.4. Short description

UCD is very interested in meeting with the banking sector to listen to their views of how both parties could work together for mutual benefit. The previous model was to have a branch on site, however our research has shown that this may no longer be attractive to the industry with the growth of online and internet banking services. These services have improved to the point that banks may wish to review their preferences on how to leverage a relationship with UCD. The university would like to hear from the sector and are therefore open to discussions and ideas on how to move this forward whereby UCD will select one bank to work with. To this end the Bursar's Office invites Expressions of Interest from service providers to enter discussions with UCD.
