The aim of the procurement is to replace our old rotating anode source with a modern low maintenance sealed tube microfocus X-ray system for protein crystallography with modern pixel array detector and in-situ plate-screening capability. The system must be capable of producing publication quality data from protein crystals and efficiently enable screening of crystals directly from 96-well plates. The system must be software controlled and compatible with a cryo-cooling system as specified. The Tenderer must provide service and maintenance support for the X-ray system.
