Title: Framework agreement for use of explosive search dogs

Description: The Agency for Water and Sewerage Works (VAV) needs to use explosive search dogs to lower the risk where VAV shall enter to rehabilitate/renew previously blasted areas (ditches/rock/tunnels). There is a risk of forsagers (remaining explosives) in several of the projects, and the use of explosive search dogs will be a risk reducing SHA measure. See annex 3 - Requirement Specifications for further information on the need.

Main features of the procedure: In accordance with the Utilities Regulations (FFO) § 21-4 (1), the contracting authority may cancel the competition with immediate effect if there is an objective reason. In accordance with FFO § 10-2 (1), the contracting authority may, before the expiry of the tender deadline, make corrections, supplements, and amendments to the tender documents that are not substantial. Description: The starting point is that climate and environmental considerations shall be weighted at least 30 percent, cf. the utilities regulations § 7-9. The obligation to make requirements or criteria according to this provision does not apply if the procurement has a climate footprint and an environmental impact that is immaterial, cf. FFO § 7-9 (5). "Art" suggests that it is not the concrete procurement's climate footprint and environment load to be assessed, but the imprint and burden on the nature of what shall be procured. As a result, an assessment shall generally be made as to whether the actual type of product or service has an immaterial climate footprint and an immaterial environmental impact. Concrete conditions in each procurement are consequently not relevant. DFØ has an overview of procurements that, in their nature, have immaterial climate footprint and environmental impact. According to DFØ's guidelines point 7.2, it has been assessed that consultancy services have a climate footprint and an environmental impact that is immaterial. The procured service is a consultancy service. An assessment is made that the service has a climate footprint and an environmental impact that is immaterial. The actual service does not cause any emissions or other environmental impact. The terms in accordance with FFO § 7-9 (5) are deemed to be fulfilled.
