II.2.4. Description of the procurement

The eLearning course must be a high quality course, i.e., inspiring and user friendly. It must be interactive and include relevant assignments, good examples, dilemmas, and reflection tasks. The eLearning course must use multimedia instruments that stimulate knowledge, skills, and attitudes on what being a government employee involves.

It must be internet based, so that you can logon from anywhere and take all or part of the course. Either via a mobil phone, tablet, or PC, (see annex 1 for the requirements for technical devices, ownership, and other requirements).

The eLearning course must stand alone as an individual learning initiative. However it would be best if entities take this as a joint competence lift in their entity and connect it to entity specific problems. We will therefore put a lot of emphasis on guidance and implementation material on how entities can use the course.
