II.1.4. Short description

The Norwegian Institute of Public Health (NIPH) has procured a enhanced 4-valent vaccine against seasonal influenza for vaccinating nursing home residents aged 65 or older. An enhanced 4-valent influenza vaccine is a vaccine that is more effective than the ordinary influenza vaccine that is offered to other target groups in the national vaccination programme.

The procurement will follow the rules for an open tender contest in accordance with the Public Procurements Act and regulations (FOA) parts 1 and 3, and will be made electronically in the contracting authority's electronic contest management tool, CTM (EU-Supply).

The aim was to enter into a contract for the delivery of 40,000 doses of enhanced 4-valent influenza vaccines. The tender documentation specified the minimum requirements for the vaccine.

The only award criterium in the tender contest was the lowest price. A contract was signed with one tenderer.

VI.3. Additional information

The contract value stated in section II.1.7) of the tender notice represents the contracting authority's estimated value of the contract at the time of the publication of the contest. Pursuant to section §13 of the Freedom of Information Act and § 13, first paragraph, point 2) of the Public Administration Act, the real contract value is not published (ref. Section V.2.4 of the tender notice).

Unit price (Price per dose) is the only price element in the contest. The contracting authority considers unit prices to be information of competitive importance to keep secret from the person to whom the information relates, who in this case is the winner of the contest. If the real contract value had been published in the tender notice, it would have been possible to calculate the unit price based on the contract value and publicly known information about the number of doses in the contract.

The contracting authority informs that the contract value is above the Public Procurement Regulations' upper threshold value and lower than the estimated procurement value, cf. Section II.1.7)
