2. Procedure

2.1. Procedure

Title: TMS machine for Ahus HF

Description: A TMS machine shall be procured for Ahus HF. Transmagnetic stimulation (r-TMS, repetiv TMS) stimulates the brain via a pulsed magnetic field, which evokes a weak flow in brain tissue. Thus, the brain's activity and connections in the brain (neural network) are affected. Indication is mainly depression, but treatment has also shown promising results when it comes to treatment of OCD and chronic pain. TMS is a non-invasive form of treatment that does not require general anaesthesia or surgery. The treatment has few and mild side effects. Many patients who have not experienced sufficient improvement with traditional antidepressants or psychotherapy have had noticeable improvements with TMS. Treatment is given approx. 5 x a week for 4-6 weeks. This will depend on which protocol is chosen and more intensified protocols are being worked on, which shall shorten the processing time. A processing session takes between 3-25 minutes, again depending on the protocol used. Cooperation AKU and ALPA (Age).
