II.1.4. Short description

The reference fleet is a selected group of Norwegian fishing vessels that, for financial compensation, give the Institute of Marine Research detailed information on their individual catches and on their general fishing activities. The aim is to have vessels that have an operations pattern that is representative for the vessel group in question. When establishing the reference fleet, emphasis will be put on achieving the best possible nationwide cooperation in the fleet. The sample taking and processing of the collected data is done with the same procedures that the Institute of Marine Research's own research vessels use.

A reference fleet of seagoing fishing vessels larger than 28 metres was started up in autumn 2000. In the last contract period it has consisted of 15 vessels. An equivalent coastal reference fleet was established along the entire coast in autumn 2005, from Varanger to Oslo fjord. This Coastal reference list includes 22 coastal vessels, mainly less than 15 meters in the gear category nets / line, but also 3 shrimp trawlers and 2 Danish seine boats.
