Direct award

Justification for direct award: Extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseeable for the buyer

Other justification: Pursuant to point 11(1)(c) of Annex I to the Financial Regulation, as interpreted by the case-law, the following conditions need to be met in order for a contracting authority, such as ENISA, to be able to launch an exceptional negotiated procedure: (i) Existence of unforeseeable events bringing about extreme urgencys; (ii) Impossibility for the contracting authority to comply with the time limits in the standard procurement procedure (as laid down in points 24, 26 and 41 of that annex to the Financial Regulation); and (iii) a causal link between the unforeseeable events and the extreme urgency resulting therefrom (in other words, that the justification of this extreme urgency is not attributable to the contracting authority). The first criterion is met as the extremely urgent need to provide support to Ukraine in terms of cybersecurity was brought by unforeseeable event of sudden and immediate withdrawal of existing support to Ukraine. For Moldova, the first criterion is met, as the support is needed to support cybersecurity incident response in relation to the elections scheduled now for September 2025. The second criterion is met as well for both Ukraine and Moldova – ENISA would not be able to meet the time limits of the standard procurement procedure, such as the time limits for receipt of tenders and requests to participate, time limits in urgent cases and time limits for procedures required by the Financial Regulation. Indeed, following such requirements typically takes 8 months. This can take even longer if the Ownership Control Assessments for service providers result in negative outcomes (in other words, service providers are ultimately owned by 3rd countries and are not eligible for providing support under the EU Cybersecurity Reserve). In the latter case, the whole procurement procedure would need to re-start again. During all this time, Ukraine and Moldova would be left without support for handling cybersecurity incidents. Lastly, the third criterion is met – as the extreme urgency has been brought by unforeseeable geo-political events. Therefore, the conditions required by point 11(1)(c) of Annex I to the Financial Regulation are met.
