II.1.4. Short description

DONG Energy is looking for Certification Bodies (CBs) who can evaluate whether the assessment of the site conditions has been adequately undertaken and documented. They shall verify that the Design Basis is sufficient and adequately documented, to ensure a safe design. The CB shall evaluate that the site-specific loads and load effects are derived in conformity with the design basis, including an independent load analysis. The CB shall verify that the design of the support structures including their bolted connection complies with the applicable codes and standards, the design basis and the results of the ILA. They shall verify the interfaces between the Type Certificate, the ILA and the Support Structure Design Evaluation.

All assessments shall be evaluated in compliance with the IEC 61400-22 Wind turbines — Part 22: Conformity testing and certification. Evaluation reports and accredited IEC Conformity Statements must be issued for each of the described modules.
