II.1.4. Short description

Wireline logging services during drilling and testing of a geothermal well at the Eden Project, Cornwall, UK. Both openhole and cased hole logging services are required.

Tenderers must be able to install their equipment and perform wireline logs on large land rigs (> 300 tons) and in deep deviated wells.

Drilling will be almost solely in granite at elevated temperature and pressure. Tenderers must be able to perform wireline logging operations in granite or similar crystalline rock, with an emphasis on expertise in hot underground conditions.

The wireline logging contractor will provide services for six stages of operations during drilling and well testing. The detailed specification of requirements for each are set out in full in the ITT documents available from Eden Geothermal.
