5.1.10. Award criteria

Criterion:

Type: Price

Description: Price

Criterion:

Type: Quality

Description: The production of dairy products carries significant climate emissions. In addition, the production requires considerable water and soil resources that can be at the cost of natural diversity, including through deforestation, and the use of chemicals that burden the ecosystem. Plastic packaging is based on oil production and can emit microplastics to nature, while distribution also involves emissions. Another big challenge is food waste. In order to limit the impact of the environment, Bergen municipality sets a number of minimum requirements in the competition: * Tenderers shall work towards food waste * There are requirements for sustainable palm oil in the power * Environmental requirements regarding goods delivery and packaging are set. Through the above mentioned minimum requirements, we secure a contract where environmental considerations are not trumped by a lower price, as the result could have been if the components had rather been altered into award criteria. We consider the market to be mature for the described minimum requirements and expect that most tenderers will be able to fulfil the requirements. The minimum requirement for climate and environment means that Bergen municipality believes to fulfil the requirements in the procurement regulation § 7-9.
