We are looking to replace our current Lv1 frontline digital forensic extraction kiosks with a an up to date forensic mobile device examination tool that can be used to facilitate the recovery of digital data from mobile devices to provide evidential results and intelligence data for volume offences, and early actionable intelligence for serious and major crime.

This could be in the form of kiosks, but there is potential for this to also be a mobile platform as well. There is also a requirement that a networked solution is obtained with an ability to remotely monitor and manage the terminals themselves to provide support to both forces moving towards accreditation under ISO 17025 and/or 17020. These systems should also be capable of integrating with a centralised data storage system. If you are interested in the above please express your interest by emailing alison.jerred@thamesvalley.pnn.police.uk no later than midday on Friday 8 January 2021. You will be required to write a short summary of your offering to include:

A short summary of the goods/service you are able to provide in relation to our request.

Please state if you have been involved in integrating your system into a centralised storage system.
