II.2.4. Description of the procurement

The contracting entity requests offers for displays and services at Fintraffic Railway Ltd's railway stations.

Dynamic displays are used at railway stations to provide passengers with train timetables, delay and disruption alerts, and other travel-related information. In this description, the term "display" refers to a package that includes: A display panel, the components and devices required for telecommunications, power supply and control (such as a controller), and a protective casing where required. Displays that show dynamic data at railway stations have been divided into the following categories based on their purpose, functionality, location and appearance:

1. Main boards
2. Platform displays
3. TFT displays
4. Other displays

All dynamic displays – that is, the display panel, casing, mounting and support structures – must form a single, well-functioning and aesthetically pleasing unit.

The goods and services are described by Description of the object of the procurement in Annex 00.
